EARLY CHRISTIANS HAD TO BE MILITANT

If Christians in the beginning had been pacifists there would have been no Christian religion declares the National Republic in commenting on Edward Bok's lament to the effect that so many "militant" hymns are sung in the churches.

Edward Bok laments the use in America, and especially in American churches, of songs which speak of battle. He deprecates the repetition of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," and hymns such as "Onward, Christian Soldiers" and "The Son of God Goes Forth to War." He believes it inconsistent for Christians to be fighting men.

He deprecates the repetition of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," and hymns such as "Onward, Christian Soldiers" and "The Son of God Goes Forth to War." He believes it inconsistent for Christians to be fighting men.

If Christians had been pacifists from the beginning, there would now be no Christian religion. All Europe would have been as completely Moslem as were eastern Europe and southern Spain centuries ago, but for the fact that there were warriors in Christendom. In a world of strife non-resistance means extinction.

Confucius taught a pacifist philosophy, and centuries ago it was accepted by China's teeming millions. It might be assumed from this that the career of China has been peaceful, yet in no other area of similar size in all the world have so many people met death by violence and nowhere else have men suffered more from oppression. Peace has been purchased in China at the price both of safety and of justice. The Chinese passively accept oppression; therefore their rights have been ignored. Government has been by the strong; the armed. Military chieftains ravage the land, because the people have never learned to resist. Government has for centuries been notoriously corrupt and unjust, because the Chinese have been taught stoical submission. And yet China is not a symbol of progress, and the level of human welfare is lower there, perhaps, than anywhere else in the world.

PURE GOLD REAL STANDARD

There's just one standard of money value and that's pure gold. There's downright keen satisfaction in knowing that there is something that this funny old world of ours uses as a standard. It is gold—pure gold.

Years ago, when the miners blew into a boom town, the scales were on the bar so that the pure golden dust might be weighed and used as purchase money. Today we read of tremendous shipments of gold bullion crossing the ocean to pay a nation's debt or being transferred from an old sub-treasury to a new one. And then the reports grow eloquent over the elaborate guard system and the sawedoff shotgun army that protected this pure gold.

Yellowbacks and greenbacks are but tokens. Counterfeiters have produced duplicates so good that they make it difficult to tell the difference between the spurious and the genuine. Store-keepers have been fooled and banks balked.

Even diamond imitations are so cleverly made of paste that experts are puzzled at times. Rubies and emeralds and sapphires are easily counterfeited.

But one is never fooled by pure gold. There is no alternate.

PLENTY ENCOURAGES EXTRAVAGANCE

It is a queer trait of human nature that when there is an abundance of something man is then prone to use more of it than usual. A certain man made the remark that if he bought a box of cigars they van-

BURGOYNE'S EXPEDITION

In the summer of 1777 the British planned to cut off New England—"the head of the rebellion"—from the other colonies.

General Burgoyne with a force of eight thousand redcoats marched down from Canada by way of Lake Champlain, and took Fort Ticonderoga. He then pressed forward to reach the Hudson, expecting that part of General Howe's army would meet him there. Meanwhile, another British expedition starting from Oswego, was to raise a force of Iroquois Indians and unite with Burgoyne.

Nothing was accomplished by the Oswego expedition. However, all went well with General Burgoyne until he struck into the dense wilderness south of Lake Champlain. Here his troubles began. General Philip Schuyler of Albany with a force of soldiers broke down all the bridges, felled trees across the only road through the woods and did everything they could to thwart Burgoyne. Then the British's horses and provisions began to give out. He sent an expedition with a thousand men to Bennington, Vermont, to get more.

Here again the Americans were prepared for the British. Colonel John Stark, one of the heroes of Bunker Hill, with a small force, went to meet the enemy. Within sight of the redcoats he said, "There they are, boys; we beat them today or Mollie Stark's a widow." Colonel Stark and his "boys" beat the British so badly that less than a hundred of the thousand ever got back to Burgoyne.

It was a great stroke for the Americans. By weakening Burgoyne's force and preventing his getting provisions, the way was prepared for his final downfall.

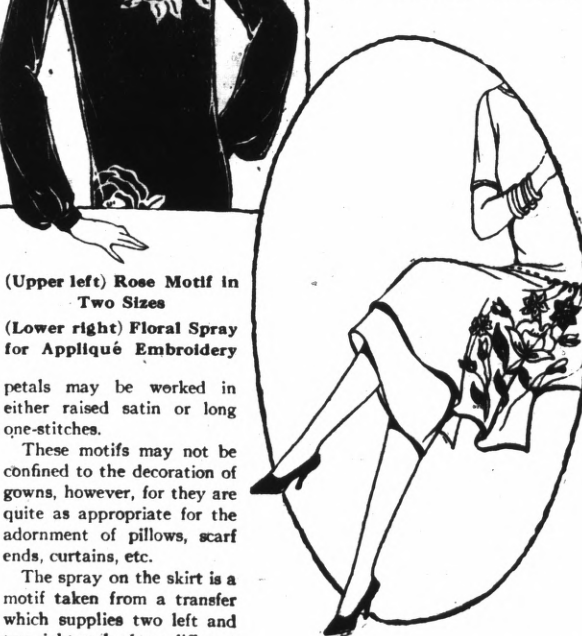

LOVELY APPLIQUE EMBROIDERY ENRICHES MODES FOR FORMAL WEAR

Embroideries in Metal Cloth, Lace and Silk Give Distinctive Touches to Frocks and Overblouses

By MONA MULLEN

PARIS is doing finer things than ever this season with embroidery, using appliques with especially beautiful and original effect. With the rage for metal cloth and gold and silver trimmings greater than ever, one can easily add a single flower or a spray of leaves and blossoms to a garment and entirely change its appearance.

On the blouse pictured a rose taken from a transfer which furnishes two left and two right motifs of a rose 8 1/4 inches high, and one left and one right motif 20 inches high. Applique guides are provided for the flower centers, leaves and stems. If the metal cloths are used for the applique, the edges are simply outlined with chain stitch or buttonhole embroidery. With plain materials the flower petals may be worked in either raised satin or long one-stitches.

These motifs may not be confined to the decoration of gowns, however, for they are quite as appropriate for the adornment of pillows, scarf ends, curtains, etc.

The spray on the skirt is a motif taken from a transfer which supplies two left and two right each of two different applique designs 12 1/4 and 13 1/4 inches high, and one left and one right of a 17-inch motif. In this instance, also, guides are provided for the motifs. Since black and dark green are so much in vogue this season these motifs could be employed to trim handsome afternoon or dinner gowns. They are also appropriate for white and light pastel shades. The needlewoman with originality will find many other ways to employ the motifs, for they are simple in their beauty of design and very easy to develop.

ished in no time, as he caught himself smoking seven or eight a day. Where as, when he bought them one or two at a time he found it much easier to be temperate. Some housewives buy groceries in large quantities to get the benefit of a lower price. Others find it more economical to buy in small quantities, since they are not extravagant when supplies are low, as they are when there are large quantities on hand. This is a rather childish trait, nevertheless there are few of us who do not find it difficult to be economical in the midst of plenty, even though we may not have the means to replenish the stock when it is exhausted.

Why Girls Go Back Home

BY CATHARINE BRODY

Copyright 1926 by Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.

"Why Girls Go Back Home" with Patsy Ruth Miller is a Warner production from this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Marie Downey, as innocent as pretty, misinterprets the kisses of Clifford Dudley, actor, as a proposal; he ruthlessly "frames" her to get rid of her. The scandalous story gets into Marie's home town paper. John, her former sweetheart, unwilling to believe it, writes to her that he will come to New York if she wants him. Sally, Marie's chum, influences her to take advantage of the "break" and Marie, given a small part, shows surprising talent and scores a "knockout."

CHAPTER I

So many people believe religiously what they read in the newspapers that the feeble "Pretty Polly," revived by the blood transfusion of a scandalous chorus girl, ran through the winter. When it closed Marie, with a special number, a few lines to say and a carefully press-agented reputation as a chorus girl "find," was counting a hundred instead of thirty-five dollars weekly in her pay envelope. Not so much of a shakes, it would seem, but on Broadway, where pretty but inexperienced chorus girls are as so many needles in an immense haystack and where actors lie so intensively about their salaries, it was a high jump.

"But the worst," as Sally sang so brightly, "is always round the corner."

Marie paid attention to her now, so much attention that Sally complained.

"You're getting an inferiority complex," she would scold. "Snap out of it!"

For though Marie had two evening dresses now and could afford an occasional luxury of spending in the huge department stores, though her sheer stockings cost five dollars a pair and her fur coat was all paid for, she hugged her fortune but uneasily. She had even wanted to leave the show and take a try back to the line in one of the late editions of the winter reviews, arguing for their season in season out security. Sally held her firmly back.

"What if you do last with them for a couple of years and have money in the bank? What good does that do you?" In this show you're the one girl on whom the eye rests easy. You're the one girl in 'Pretty Polly' for whom the Sunday editors'll find space in the photo. Wait—and take dancing lessons."

Marie took dancing lessons. She took them till her legs seemed to be wrenched completely out of their sockets and then they fell back into place with ease. She had no time to think or to care or to wonder, no time for nostalgia and no time to mourn her disgrace. Nothing is so full or so complete by itself as an active life in the theatre unless it be an active life in the movies.

In the morning there were dancing lessons, gym, the theatrical news to pore over. In the afternoon there was as meticulous grooming as her purse would allow, long sessions at the hairdresser, hours spent doing Sally's nails and getting hers done by Sally, more hours pressing clothes, washing out delicate stockings, which must always be fresh, carefully making up for the theatre. In the evenings there was the theatre and sometimes a party afterwards.

Marie learned to smoke, learned to smile aloofly, learned to put college boys in their place and idle youths in their. She changed the final "y" of her name to an "e" and on Sally's advice hinted of French parentage. She learned that for her face it was best for her eyes always to be watery and her lips just tenderly touched with rouge, but her dimple coquettishly evident. She used the dimple with effect. She read the brief letters from her father briefly and replied in kind.

Came the day when she said to Sally in a cloud of cigarette smoke (she never could learn to inhale):

"What do I care what the four hundred of Winesville think of me?" Sally slapped her on the back and did an impromptu Charleston.

"Attar! I don't know what you're going, but you're on your way."

All these things could not but bring something to pass, and something did.

Something came just before the spring closing of "Pretty Polly." It was a letter from the grateful author of the book and lyrics. He had been living on his royalties on the Riviera; but, having come and seen the addition to his show, he had liked her so much that the book of his new musical comedy was built about a girl with Marie's personality, or so the author thought. Not only that, but it was actually to be produced, and he named one of the greatest producers of girl shows of them all—and if Marie would come to his office.

"Some luck!" breathed Sally. "From Rags to Riches!"

For the first but not for the last time the shrewd innkeeper father and the Yankee traders of Marie's mother's ancestry came to the surface.

"There's got to be a part in it for you, too, Sally," she said quietly, "and—what's a good agent? They're not going to get me cheap."

"That's the stuff," cheered Sally. "Be ritz, be ritzier, but be not too ritz."

By the end of that fall Marie was quite accustomed to seeing her name dazzling a little portion of the heavens over Broadway.

Finishing Touches Are Being Put On Operetta to be Given Friday by Club Mendelssohn

All is in readiness for the Mendelssohn club's operetta, "The Feast of the Little Lanterns" which will be given at the Roosevelt Junior High school auditorium on Friday evening at 8 o'clock. This event promises to be one of the most colorful affairs ever presented.

The story of the opera centers about Princess Chan, who is ejected from her ancestral home because it can only be inherited by two children of the late Prince Chan. The brother and sister of the princess was lost since childhood and the princess mourns the loss of her home.

When the time of the celebration of the Feast of the Little Lanterns comes about is the time that the Princess must leave her home and the story continues in a most colorful way to tell how she finds her lost sister and they inherit the childhood home.

The principal characters in the plot are: Princess Chan, whose role is sung by Mrs. Blise Brothers; Mai Ku, a Japanese juggling maid, around whom the climax centers, portrayed by Mrs. Earl Scofield; Wei Ling, maid to the princess; Miss Bernice Mills, who furnishes some comedy, with the princess' governess, Ow Long, sung by Mrs. James Stewart.

The musical numbers and songs of the operetta for the two acts include: Act one, Overture; chorus, "Pretty Little Lanterns"; solo and chorus, "On a Day Long Ago"; solo and chorus, "There ought to be a Law in China"; solo and chorus, "Ghost Song"; solo and chorus, "Juggler Song"; chorus, "Slow, Slow"; Act two, instrumental introduction; solo, "O Beautiful"; chorus, "We Have Caught Wei Ling"; solo and chorus, "The Beautiful Peacock"; solo and chorus, "Up Her Sleeve"; solo and chorus, "Let Every Place Be Searched"; duet, "Ah, With Joy"; chorus, "Dragon Chorus"; Chinese dance; finale.

The dances which will form a big part of the scenes will be given by a selected dancing chorus under the direction of Miss Matilda Meyers. The children of Miss Meyer's class who will take part in this event will be: Cornelia Royce, Bernice Mills, Valera Davidson, Edith Kettelhut, Thelma Vestal, Neida Haines and Grace Lowell.

Put Your Money To Work

If ten years ago you had started depositing $25.00 a month in the bank, the accumulation today would total $3,000.00, without interest. If the same sum monthly in the same period had earned four per cent interest, compounded semi-annually, as paid by the Mercantile Trust Company of California on savings accounts, the total on deposit would be $3,686.92.

Saving money is a habit worth cultivating. It is the surest way of providing for future financial uncertainties. Why not start today?

MODERN LOVE STORY SHOWING AT RICHMOND

The Richmond Theatre is offering its patrons for the last time tonight George Fitzmaurice's latest first National picture, "The Dark Angel," presented by Samuel Goldwyn.

"The Dark Angel" is easily one of the most captivating of the many successes to the credit of Fitzmaurice. It is a modern love story replete with thrills and lavishness.

The leading man role, that of Billy Trent, is in the hands of Ronald Colman, who is seen at his very best in this military role. Opposite him in this, his first American screen play, is Vilma Banks, the fascinating artist recently brought from Budapest by Samuel Goldwyn under long term contract. Her beauty, grace and high order of dramatic talent are unquestioned, and Fitzmaurice has given her wonderful opportunities to display these qualities to the best advantage. As Kitty Vane she awakens a keen sympathy for the role and easily proves herself a young emotional actress of the first rank.

Natural color photography is judiciously used to emphasize certain episodes, thereby increasing the fascination. Thrilling fox hunts, battles staged with astonishing technique and of almost unbelievable magnitude, are intermingled with tender love passages, heart-breaking tragedy and fantasy. All in all, "The Dark Angel" is great entertainment.

Other features include "Hooked," a Lloyd Hamilton comedy; "Topics of the Day"; and "Aesop's Fables."

Jury Has Case Of "Candy Kid" In Murder Trial

(By Universal Service)

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 26.—The fate of Richard R. Whittemore, "candy kid" bandit leader was placed in the hands of a jury by Superior Court Justice Noonan at 5:45 o'clock this evening.

Whittemore has been on trial for just a week and one day on the charge of the murder of Charles W. Clifford, Buffalo bank guard, during a $95,000 hold up in this city October 29, last.

Two calls for police reserves were sent in to assist the jurors in getting through the immense crowd of men and women that had flocked and argued their way into the dilapidated old court house during the day.

Whittemore, manacled to two deputy sheriffs and hemmed in by six other deputies, was led to his cell, through the underground "tunnel of tears," to await the word that will either mean the electric chair or a manacled journey to Baltimore to stand trial for the alleged murder of a penitentiary guard.

In the front row of the courtroom, back of the court railing sat Mrs. Margaret Whittemore, the "tiger girl" wife of the young bandit. She had sat there all day, after pleading unsuccessfully to be permitted to sit at the counsel table with her husband and console him in the last hours of the trial.

As he passed her, Whittemore tugged at his manacles and said: "Please boys, let me, please."

He stooped and kissed his wife, she clung to him, sobbing aloud. It was a pathetic scene, with a curious crowd looking on, Justice Noonan raising for order, the deputies tugging at the manacled wrist of the "candy kid."

It was their first kiss since Whittemore was turned over to Buffalo authorities by District Attorney Banton of New York City, to stand trial for the alleged murder here.

The "tiger girl" realized it might be almost their last. She collapsed hysterically in the arms of Whittemore's heart-broken father, whose drawn face has been conspicuous in the courtroom since the trial began. She sobbed: "My husband, he's innocent."

They led Whittemore away. His eyes were misty.

RICHARD DIX MAKING HIT AT CALIFORNIA

Richard Dix's latest picture, "Let's Get Married," opened at the California last night to the tune of tumultuous applause. It's one of those things known as a sure thing. Louis Wilson is seen to advantage in the featured role. Gregory La Cava, who is principally remembered for "Womanhandled," the Dix comedy which preceded this one, directed it as his second Paramount production.

"Let's Get Married" is far from a comedy right from the very first title. The action starts when Dix and a couple of pals are seen in front of a night club, accompanied by an organ grinder, his monkey and a street cleaner—the sextet engaged in singing "Saxo-Adeline." Their Alma Mater has just won a great football victory, and they are helping to celebrate.

After being arrested for having distributed the powerful quiet of the night club with a big brawl and free-for-all, Richard promises to reform and become what his father wants him to be—a successful hymn book salesman. Then he meets Lois, and renews his vows of chastity to her.

Our hero goes to call on his first prospect, a "J. W. Smith," purchasing agent for missionaries. Expecting to find a quiet dignified gentleman, he equips himself with concert tickets. Imagine his surprise to find that "J. W." is a woman and what a woman! Edna May Oliver is the time of her life. She insists on going to a night club, and they land in the same one where Richard is known for only two things—trouble and fighting. The inevitable happens. Lois enters and Dix exits to the police court. Sentenced to a thirty day prison term, he writes Lois a series of letters describing his adventures in the South Seas, where he is presumably selling hymns to the natives.

Luther Reed adapted the story from H. A. Lu Souche's stage play, "The Man From Mexico." Other features on the same program include "Nobody's Business," a Lloyd Hamilton comedy; "Washington," from the fashion center; "Topics of the Day"; Larry Caneio at the organ.

Miss Viola Dowell left for a visit in Reno, Nev., on Sunday night.

40,000 Workers Are Nearer Goal Of Safety And Health

Posters Which Have Helped in War Against Accidents

At the end of the year 1925 the Western Electric Company employed 39,400 men and women, most of them in the company's telephone works at Chicago and in the newer plant at Kearny, New Jersey. This figure represents a decrease of 4,344 during the year. The prospect for 1926, the company's report says, is for an increasing number of employees.

During 1925 there were fewer withdrawals from the ranks of employees than in previous years. The average length of service of employees is longer and the average wages paid are higher than ever before.

A program for sickness prevention was initiated by the Western Electric Company during 1925, according to the annual report of the company, which says, "Industry at large pays a high price for illness on the part of its workers. Every step forward in the effort to improve the general health of the employees is beneficial to them, to the industry and to the community."

Women Will End War Says Nations Chief Executive

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Once the women of the United States take an aggressive interest in military affairs, useless and costly armaments will be made a thing of the past, President Coolidge today told Miss Jane Addams, famous social welfare worker of Hull House, Chicago.

Miss Addams was received at the head of a delegation from the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, of which she is president.

They urged the President to insist that abolition of universal conscription and of military armaments shall be included in the agenda of the League of Nations disarmament conference.

"Universal conscription is a relatively new departure, established by Frederick of Prussia and is coming to be regarded by millions of Americans as undemocratic," Miss Addams said at the close of the conference.

Miss Addams regards the universal conscription bill in congress as unfortunate. It has the backing of the administration and the American Legion and is reported to have won the growing support of organized labor.

President Coolidge said in his Omaha speech that conscription of wealth as well as men would eliminate slacking and profiteering from war. But Miss Addams commented today, "I had hoped we would get away from instead of closer to universal compulsory service."

Girl Without a Country Puzzles U. S. Officials

(By Universal Service)

WASHINGTON, April 26.—American officials today moved to provide a new homeland for Anna Adelsberg, "the girl without a country" who was smuggled into this country illegally by her sweetheart a year ago.

Anna is twenty-three, pretty, and by birth a Russian. Since last June, while England and Canada have been deciding that she had no claim to land upon their shores, and American officialdom has been racking its brains over what to do with her, Anna's only home has been the detention quarters at Ellis Island.

Today with this nine month international immigration dispute dropped, Assistant Secretary of Labor W. W. Husband urged that she be allowed to remain in America, on parole. Indications are that the Immigration Board of review will heed his plea.

Anna lived for 14 years with her Russian parents in Scotland, the parents are still there, but since they have never become British subjects Anna cannot enforce her claim to be allowed to return.

Similar considerations of lack of citizenship bar her return to Canada, where she lived for two years as an immigrant from Scotland, before coming to the United States.

The only country to which Anna can prove a claim is Russia, and since this country does not recognize the Russian government, she cannot obtain a passport to Russia. Steamship companies will not take her as a passenger without a passport.

Anna's sweetheart, who had preceded her from Canada to New York, smuggled her across the border in a swift automobile.

Before Anna could marry this sweetheart he died, according to immigration officials, Anna fell into the hands of the police, ultimately, and found herself facing charges of entering the country without proper authority.

When efforts to deport her failed, officials decided she could no longer be detained, so, unlike the young officer in Hale's famous story who was doomed all his life to sail the seas, "The Girl Without a Country" will probably have an adopted land at last.

Special Wireless to Universal Service

LONDON, April 26.—Mrs. Owen D. Young, of New York, was the first woman to have a family telephone talk between London and New York. Sitting in her drawing room at the Savoy Hotel yesterday afternoon she called up her apartment in Park avenue, using the ordinary room telephone.

"I spoke first to my daughter and then to my son," she said. "Their voices were as clear as if they were speaking from the next room, instead of over a distance of three thousand miles."

The conversations took place through the American station at Riverhead, and Rugby, England, the latter station receiving on an ordinary wire.

Son of Famous Rabbi Renounces Jewish Faith

(By Universal Service)
NEW YORK, April 26.—The "God of his Fathers" is still the God of James Freeman Wise, son of Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, but the young man's zeal in the religion of his forebears is not sufficiently great, he has just announced, to cause him to become a rabbi.

This decision, coming from a youth whose father is the foremost spokesman for orthodox Judaism in the country, was reached after two years' study for the pulpit. It not only caused a profound stir among the Jews of the city, but strongly affected Dr. Wise himself.

"Judaism, as a religion, has ceased to play a vital part in Jewish life," declared young Wise today, in announcing his decision, "and so, as a religion, it cannot survive."

The son of the famous Jewish pastor admitted that it had taken him many months to reach this remarkable indictment of Jewish religion. During these months he was at White Plains, taking an active part in the affairs of the Jewish forum. He was strongly impressed by the religion fervency of his father, and the plans he had made to have him take the vows as a Jewish pastor, but in the end he concluded he could not do what his father wanted.

"I told him so, and he was disappointed, of course," he said. "But he did not blame me too much. One of the things he had taught me more strongly than anything else was that I must always seek the truth and live by it. Feeling this way I didn't believe it would be right for me to become a rabbi."

Bold, Bad Bandits Rob Store of Pies

(By Universal Service)
EVANSTON, Ill., April 26.—Six bold, bad, bandits held up and robbed a delicatessen store here today of a case of pies. The bandits ranged in age from 12 to 15 years.

The sextette was armed with clubs when they walked boldly into the store. They threatened to "brain" the proprietor unless he acceded to their demands.

Five of the lads were arrested and gave the names of "John Smith," "Tom Jones," "Al White," "Sam Brown," and "James Green."

Is Being Held for Drunken Driving

Charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, George Smith, 624 Twenty-third street, Oakland, was arrested Sunday night by Constable John Ott of Concord. Justice E. P. Jackson yesterday fixed Smith's bail at $500.

Smith is said to have side-swiped a car driven by Leopoldo Quattrin of Bay Point and when arrested, the constable found an empty gallon wine jug. The four occupants of Quattrin's car were badly bruised and lacerated.

ONETAH TRIBE ISSUES DRILL CHALLENGE

The Onetah tribe of Red Men last night issued a challenge to the Shenadoah tribe at Pinole for a drill match to be held in the near future for the county championship. At the present time Pinole holds the county cup for being one of the best drilled teams in the county.

Further plans were discussed for the big days of '49 which is to begin on May 6 and continue until May 8. A bigger tent is being sought to take the place of that in the lot adjacent to the Red Men's hall at the present time.

An announcement has been made to the effect that those who have purchased tickets during March and the early part of April for the event, will find these tickets good at this show. The event was originally scheduled for April 5 but because of bad weather it was postponed.

On May 9 the adoption degree will be conferred upon a group of candidates.

CITY POUND IS REPORTED TO BE SANITARY

That the city pound is in as good sanitary condition as can be expected was the report made to the city council last night by the committee which inspected the pound because of the protests received concerning the odor and sanitary conditions.

The committee admitted that conditions should be improved if a concrete floor were built in the pound, but when this was suggested some time previous, citizens objected on the grounds that the dogs would get rheumatism from sleeping on the cold floors. City Manager James A. McVittie told the council that in the new pounds concrete floors are built and the condition objected to overcome by the installation of wooden counters on which the dogs sleep.

According to the report, nothing better can be expected from the pound as long as the wooden floor which when washed absorbs the water, is allowed to remain. A concrete floor in the pound would cost approximately $1,000.

Stressmann Lauds Russo-German Pact

BERLIN, April 26.—The new Russo-German pact is a step toward pacification in Europe. It might well serve as a model for other agreements for the promotion of understanding among nations for the assurance of peace.

"That was the guiding thought at Locarno, the present Russo-German agreement seems to be the logical complement of Locarno. I would welcome it if the ideas on which the pact was based would spread throughout Europe."

In these words Foreign Minister Stressmann summed up the situation in an interview with Universal Service tonight simultaneously with the publication of the Russo-German pact. The aims and purposes of which proved to be one of the most sensational political moves in Europe since the war and which caused a regular storm in European chancelleries.

Mrs. Taber and Captain Clamptt were exonerated of any wrong doing by the woman's husband who stated that she went to Santa Cruz with Clamptt with his personal knowledge and consent.

"I know it looks bad said Mrs. Taber but I was guilty of no wrong doing so I have nothing to hide or nothing to be ashamed of. I registered under an assumed name because I have friends in Santa Cruz and I did not want them to know of my arrival as the newspapers printed the hotel arrivals."

Captain Clamptt asserted he was prompted to register under an assumed name because he did not want to be bothered by friends who might call to congratulate him on his court martial acquittal.

She was taken to the Abbott Emergency hospital where her injuries received treatment and later she was removed to her home.

Slight damage was done when cars driven by W. H. Roberts and W. B. Phillips of Albany, collided on Cutting boulevard Sunday night.

At the Southern Pacific subway, a street car, of which C. L. "Bart" was the motorman, crashed into a machine driven by W. J. McLoughli. The crash was unavoidable, according to authorities. The rear of McLoughli's car was crushed and a fender was torn from the street car.

Russell Likens to Be Returned to County for Trial

MARTINEZ, April 26.—Deputy Sheriff Ralph Harrison left for San Diego yesterday to return Russell Likens, 23, to Martinez, for trial of a statutory offense, involving a 17-year-old Pittsburg girl. Likens was arrested at San Diego last week.

"Sunken Road" to be Closed to Traffic

Traffic over the "sunken road" a few miles out of Martinez on the Martinez-Bay Point highway, will be closed from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. in order to minimize interruption of county crews engaged in filling the sink.

In a conference with Southern Pacific engineers, the county engineers decided that the best way of repairing the road is to build it up. Enough material will be dumped into the sink to form a solid bed for the road.

Chronic Catarrh Relieved
Hearings Restored
April 9, 1926.
During all my life I had suffered from Catarrh, more or less. A few months ago it became so bad that my eyes and head ached terribly and I could not hear well in either ear. Although I tried many treatments and doctors, I got no benefit whatever. I was told that I must have an operation for Adenoids and Tonsils. Fortunately, however, instead, I came to the Fong Wan Herb Co. for treatment. After two weeks all my complaints were gone. I have nowhere else found remedies comparable with the Fong Wan Herbs.

Gall Bladder Troubles Gone!
To Whom It May Concern:
For over a year I had trouble in my gall bladder, pain on my right side, vomiting and a general rundown condition. On February 23rd of this year I had an attack of appendicitis, the pain of which was so severe that I could not sleep at night. I came to see the Chew & Chew herbals and after taking one dose of herbs I was greatly relieved. I continued to take the herbs for a few more weeks and I am all well now. March 14, 1926.

ENGLAND WILL TAX GAMBLING AT RACE TRACKS

(By Universal Service)
LONDON, April 26.—A tax on race track betting was a novel controversial feature of the budget which Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill introduced in the House of Commons today.

The budget as a whole brings no relief to British taxpayers and the conclusion of the crowded house after the Chancellor's speech was that although Britain's financial position is sound, many years of heavy taxation are still ahead.

Churchill said that the tax on betting which is to begin to operate next November, will yield $30,000,000 a year. It is five per cent imposed on every stake made on the track or through credit bookmakers. Nearly the whole of the proceeds will be collected on returns furnished by credit bookmakers. The cash betting at the tracks will be taxed by a system of tickets.

"No doubt the bookmakers who will be responsible for the tax will recover it from their clients," was the Chancellor's comment. He called it an optional tax which citizens may legitimately avoid if they choose, and he added:

"I shall be told that I am making money for the state from what is an evil thing, my reply is that the treasury is already making money from evil things."

Lady Astor cheered Churchill's announcement that there has been a reduction in the consumption of beer and spirits the past year.

Churchill's budget places Britain's estimated expenditures for the coming year at $12,641,000 pounds and indicates revenues which will leave a deficit of 7,941,000 pounds, or approximately $39,700,000. The nation's debt-weight debt, the budget figures show, was reduced 20,000,000 pounds in the past year to 7,616,000,000 pounds, or about $37,000,000,000. The floating debt stands at 704,290,000 or about $3,520,000,000.

Missing Jeweler Found in Colorado

The letter asks that money for his transportation home be sent in care of general delivery. Mrs. Fleming turned the letter over to police to investigate.

ACQUITTED ON CHARGE OF CRACKING SAFE

Lieut. Clarence K. Aiken, U. S. Cavalry officer at the Monterey Presidio was acquitted last week on a charge of attempting to rob a theatre safe. A policeman caught two men in the act, but one of them escaped. The one who was captured, First Sergeant Charles C. Barnes, named Aiken, his superior, as the directing hand in the alleged attempt.

State Board of Health Makes Test

Within the requirements of the State Board of Health for a safe swimming pool water at the time of sampling. These samples were taken on a day of heavy patronage, and the tests therefore show the ability of the water purification system to maintain a clean, safe water for swimming purposes. The water shows no deterioration since our previous sampling, March 31, 1926.

Numerous protests have been received by the city authorities by persons circulating the report that the waters in the pool were responsible for sore throats, sore eyes, sore cuts and countless other diseases.

City Manager McVittie declared that the majority of the colds claimed by bathers to have been caught at the pool, were caused because many of them insist upon taking hot showers before going out into the night air. Sore cars, he declared, were caused by continued diving without the use of ear stoppers and were caused by the pressure on the ear drums and not by the water.

In regard to the thievery, he said that the city maintained lock boxes for valuables and that the patrons were not charged for their use. The complaints, he said, were from those using the large room as a dressing room and not taking precautionary measures in checking their watches and other valuables. When the new lockers are finished on the balcony of the men's section, he said that this condition would be overcome.

(By Universal Service)
LOS ANGELES, April 26.—A jury of six men and six women was selected today in Superior Judge Edwin Kahn's court to try J. F. Fronk so called financier of Hollywood.

Special Garage Permit Granted

In regard to the special permit requested of the city council by Harold de Normandie for the construction of five garages on the lot-line of his property on Foot-bill boulevard in the El Cerrito Terrace section, the city council accepted the report of the city planning committee, which recommended that the garages be so constructed that the doors when opened will be at least one foot from the sidewalks fronting the property.

Owing to the nature of the property de Normandie declared that the construction of the garages in accordance with the building regulations would work a hardship on him. He requested that he be allowed to construct the garages on the lot line of his property. The council objected to this on the grounds that complaints would be filed by pedestrians if the open doors projected over the sidewalks, but granted him a special permit to construct them so that the doors when open would be within a foot of the sidewalk.

No Relief Seen For Street Car Switching Jams

The matter in abeyance for the time being.

Several delays, caused by the blocking of Macdonald avenue while cars were being switched into the barns were reported to the council. Several complaints in regard to the service maintained, especially during rush hours when passengers were anxious to get to their homes, were also reported. Chief among these complaints were the poor transfer conditions, in which cars started while the trunk line cars were approaching the transfer points and that dead-head cars were pulled along the streets when passengers were crowding the cars.

The city has been urging the transit company to make use of Twenty-first street into the barns as a switch and thus relieve the congestion on Macdonald avenue.

The matter was referred to Superintendent of Streets E. A. Hoffman to investigate conditions and to make a report at the next meeting.
